A NOTE FROM DR. STEIN

Another week has passed and we are one week closer to Christ's second return! This week was special for several reasons. Monday was Teacher Development Day, and a day was spent at the Conference Office in Charlotte learning some tips to improve in professionalism and learning. One exciting new program we will be offering next year is the Character Development program, where kids get to learn the 71 living (and some who have passed away) recipients of the Congressional Medal of Honor. Students will hear first-hand accounts of selflessness, loyalty, and integrity, and try to model their behavior in our daily walk. A second exciting new program we will start in the fall is participation in the Adventist Robotics League. This is a program where students build useful projects and compete in building competitions. Both of these new programs will need someone to oversee/encourage the process. If you are interested in leading out, please let me know!

Another reason this week was special was our craft and baking day on Wednesday. Each day the students work to earn 'marbles' (these are rewarded for positive behavior/following directions.) These marbles can either be turned back into the marble jar for an individual prize, or poured into the collective class jar to earn a class-wide prize. Last week students filled up the class jar and earned a half-day of crafts and baking. We made models of teepees, log houses, and we baked peanut-butter cookies, oatmeal-butterscotch cookies, and rice-crispy-treats (all vegan, of course!). It was a fun and engaging day! Yet another highlight of this week was the arrival of 'Butterfly Barbara' to teach us all about butterfly metamorphosis, migration, and milkweed. This fun process was to prepare us for Earth Day. This Sunday at 10AM we will have public presentation from our butterfly expert! We hope to have a community presence represented by a news crew or radio host! We will see what happens! But even if it's just us, we will enjoy celebrating Earth Day in a way that provides for one of God's most awesome animal gifts: the butterfly. Come support Ms. Barbara by attending our butterfly presentation, and do a little 'shopping' as well at our Rummage Sale that's running from 8AM-3PM. There will be baked goods, too! You don't want to miss it.
