STUDENT OF THE WEEK

A NOTE FROM DR. STEIN

Wow, another week has passed. We are feeling the first hint of Fall! We have enjoyed the cooler weather in the mornings. In school we are settling into our routines and schedules.

Upper grader projects this week were about Buddhism and Hinduism and their place in Middle Eastern history. We framed our learning under the understanding that many people have been led astray by these false gods and doctrines. Sometimes it can be difficult to separate the falsehood from the truth! Some of the Dalai Llama's "truths" are extremely difficult to separate from the truth we find in scripture. Our best defense is a planned offense. We stay deep in the truth of the Bible, and are careful to separate fact from opinion.

Lower grade projects this week were about rural communities. We learned about different types of farmers, about why someone would choose a life in the country, and about farm machinery.

We were blessed with our first 3-day weekend! Many of our students (and us teachers, as well!) enjoyed some playtime and merriment during the Labor Day rest. Praise God for his bountiful blessings!

A couple examples of the Van Gogh paintings.

Our chapel speaker, Mrs. Sherry.

Special story time with Miss Leesa!

Odds and Ends

This last week the kids finished their Van Gogh paintings. They did such a wonderful job! This week they are working on a perspective city sketch. The kids are really enjoying showing their creative side. It's fun seeing their personalities shine through their work.

Friday, Mrs. Sherry was our chapel speaker. She talked about the Good Samaritan in the context of Hurricane Harvey.

Last week, we also had a special guest, Miss Leesa, come share a special story time with us!

We are so thankful for all of our volunteers!

This is the day the Lord has made; We will rejoice and be glad in it. Psalms 118:24
